

Shedding Light on the Subject

Have you ever noticed how the amount of light differs the further you are underwater? Consider the environment of the dolphins pictured and how the light intensity changes from the surface of the water to the bottom of the ocean.

1. Write one or two questions whose answers will be mathematical equations.
2. Predict what graphs and equations are involved in answering your question. Include a sketch of your graph(s).